

SHEET-PAN TOFU WITH CORN & CHILES

2-4 servings • 425°F • about 45-65 minutes, including draining

INGREDIENTS

- 1 (14- to 16-ounce) package extra-firm tofu, cut crosswise into 1-inch-thick slices
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1¾ teaspoons fine sea or table salt, plus more as needed
- 1 teaspoon chili powder, plus more as needed
- ½ teaspoon ground cumin, plus more as needed
- 3 cups fresh or frozen corn kernels (from about 3 large ears)
- 2 jalapeños, halved, seeded if desired and thinly sliced
- 1 red onion, halved and thinly sliced into half-moons
- 1 poblano chile, halved, seeded and thinly sliced (1 cup)
- 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil, plus more for drizzling
- 1 lime, halved
- 1 garlic clove, finely grated or minced
- ½ cup chopped fresh cilantro or basil

KITCHEN NOTE

Frozen corn works well year-round. If it releases extra moisture, allow a few additional minutes of roasting so the tofu stays crisp.

METHOD

- 1 Heat oven to 425°F. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.
- 2 Arrange tofu slices on a clean kitchen towel or paper towels. Cover with another towel, then place a flat cutting board or baking pan on top. Weight it with a few cans or a skillet if needed. Drain for at least 15 minutes and up to 45 minutes.
- 3 While the tofu drains, stir together the cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, chili powder and cumin in a medium bowl.
- 4 In another bowl, combine the corn, about half the jalapeño slices (reserve the rest), red onion, poblano, 2 tablespoons olive oil and the remaining 1¾ teaspoons salt. Mix well.
- 5 Transfer the drained tofu to a cutting board and cut into 1-inch cubes; pat dry. Add to the cornstarch mixture and toss well. Drizzle with 1 tablespoon olive oil and toss gently to coat.
- 6 Spread tofu on the baking sheet with space between the cubes. Roast 15 minutes. Flip the tofu and nudge it to one side; spoon the corn mixture onto the empty half. Drizzle everything with a little more oil. Roast until the tofu is golden and crisp, 15 to 20 minutes more, stirring the corn once.
- 7 Meanwhile, squeeze the lime juice into a small bowl. Add a pinch each of chili powder, cumin and salt; stir in the reserved jalapeño and the garlic.
- 8 Just before serving, pour the lime-chile mixture over the corn and toss well. Top everything with cilantro or basil and serve.
